

As a native San Franciscan, Diane grew up appreciating the beauty of Marin and moved here in 1978. Diane began her career in education and progressed through research, administration and business. She has managed non-profit organizations in the roles of executive director and board member. She worked in marketing and advertising, headed a small business and led workshops and seminars for leaders of business and education. She has promoted the arts, education, ecological sustainability and world peace through volunteer work on boards of directors for both profit and non-profit organizations. In addition to her role as chair of the Marin Cultural Association, Diane serves on the boards of The University of California Santa Barbara Alumni Association and is the Board President of Marin Art and Garden Center.

Diane received the Center for Non-Profit Leadership 2017 Heart of Marin Award for Excellence in Board Leadership.
